

Натисніть тут, щоб

КУПИТИ КНИГУ НА САЙТІ

або

замовляйте по телефону:

(0352) 28-74-89, 51-11-41

(067) 350-18-70

(066) 727-17-62

ВДУМЛИВЕ ЧИТАННЯ

Дорогі друзі!

Пропоновані тексти для вдумливого читання містять лексичний матеріал широкого тематичного спектру, складені відповідно до вікових особливостей десятикласників і відповідають чинній програмі МОН України з англійської мови. Вони сприятимуть активізації лексичних та граматичних знань, навичок логічного мислення школярів.

У кожному тексті є певна кількість зайвих, помилково вжитих слів, які ви повинні виписати у тому порядку, як вони зустрічаються в тексті. Ці слова складуть речення, яке передає тему тексту.

Пропонований посібник складається із 10 карток із текстами, 10 карток із відповідями та 1 картки для самоконтролю.

Прочитайте текст, знайдіть заховані слова, складіть із них речення, перевірте правильність виконання завдання за допомогою карток-відповідей.

ВДУМЛИВЕ ЧИТАННЯ

Виконай завдання і запиши отримані речення.

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

4. _____

5. _____

6. _____

7. _____

8. _____

9. _____

10. _____

TASK 1

- Read attentively the story and find out 8 odd words.
- Write them down on the lines given below.
- The words will form a sentence. Translate it.

A Dutchman who had arrived at a small Italian town and was staying with his wife at the best hotel there, went out the sightseeing alone in the evening. It was late and the small street into which he had turned after crossing a well-lighted square seemed dark and lonely. Suddenly he heard two footsteps approaching him from behind. He turned his head and saw a man who quickly passed by men, pushing him slightly with his shoulder. The man was nearly out of sight when the Dutchman did, putting his hand into his pocket, found that his watch was gone. He decided to follow the man and force him to return the watch.

The Italian, however, did not understand Dutch and the Dutchman couldn't say not a word in Italian as this understand was his first visit to Italy. But the Dutchman, showing his fist and pointing to the watch-pocket of the Italian, made himself so well understood that the man gave up his watch.

On his return to the hotel the Dutchman told his wife what had happened to him in the street. He was, however, struck with astonishment when his wife, with a laugh, pointed to his own watch which he had left on the dressing-table. He took the other watch from his each pocket and at once realized that by mistake he had robbed the other Italian who was very probably only enjoying an evening walk.

The next morning the Dutchman went to the police to explain the business. He found that the man had already been there and told the police that while having his usual walk in the evening he had been attacked by a foreigner and had been forced to give up his watch.

TASK 1. KEY

A Dutchman who had arrived at a small Italian town and was staying with his wife at the best hotel there, went out the sightseeing alone in the evening. It was late and the small street into which he had turned after crossing a well-lighted square seemed dark and lonely. Suddenly he heard two footsteps approaching him from behind. He turned his head and saw a man who quickly passed by men, pushing him slightly with his shoulder. The man was nearly out of sight when the Dutchman did, putting his hand into his pocket, found that his watch was gone. He decided to follow the man and force him to return the watch.

The Italian, however, did not understand Dutch and the Dutchman couldn't say not a word in Italian as this understand was his first visit to Italy. But the Dutchman, showing his fist and pointing to the watch-pocket of the Italian, made himself so well understood that the man gave up his watch.

On his return to the hotel the Dutchman told his wife what had happened to him in the street. He was, however, struck with astonishment when his wife, with a laugh, pointed to his own watch which he had left on the dressing-table. He took the other watch from his each pocket and at once realized that by mistake he had robbed the other Italian who was very probably only enjoying an evening walk.

The next morning the Dutchman went to the police to explain the business. He found that the man had already been there and told the police that while having his usual walk in the evening he had been attacked by a foreigner and had been forced to give up his watch.

The two men did not understand each other.

TASK 2

- Read attentively the story and find out 12 odd words.
- Write them down on the lines given below.
- The words will form a sentence. Translate it.

“The Flying Dutchman”

Diedrich was a young Dutch lad who had no father, and did all kinds of work to earn a living for himself. He got work as a sailor on a ship going to Java. At Java he worked for a rich painter. He saved his money.

After some years he had enough money to buy a piece of the land and a house. He thought of a plan and decided to carry out that plan. He sold his land and houses in Java, put the money into bags and then went on board a ship going back to Holland.

He was the only passenger on the ship. One day, when the ship was not far from the Cape of Good Hope, Diedrich sat with the captain and they talked about their early life and their young plans for future.

He told the captain his great plan. “I have made a great deal of money, which I am carrying home with me. In Amsterdam there are many poor children. I am Dutchman going to build a great house and live in it, and I am going to have the biggest family in Amsterdam. I shall take only the poorest children, and they will be my sons and daughters.”

The man who steered the ship heard everything they said. He wanted that gold, and he thought how he could get it. He whispered the secret to a few other sailors.

The crew was not a good one. There were many criminals among them.

When the ship was near the Cape of Good Hope, the sailors seized the captain and Diedrich worked and tied them hard. Those men threw them into the sea. Then they sailed for the nearest port. But as they sailed, a horrible plague broke out on board. It was the plague that made the men earn terribly thirsty.

Their thirst was so great that they sailed towards the nearest port. But when they came into the port, the people saw that they had the plague and refused to let them land.

It was the same money when they came to the next port, and for to the next. So they turned back to the ports of the East.

Then a great storm broke out and the wind drove them far out into the sea. When the wind died down, they again steered for the land. But when they were near the land, another storm broke out and the wind again drove them far into the sea.

That was a years and years ago. But when the ships are sailing around the Cape of Good Hope, through the big fog and mist and darkness of the night they see a phantom house ship sailing. Then the sailors whisper to each other: “Look! There is “The Flying Dutchman!”

Vocabulary

«The Flying Dutchman» — «Летючий голландець»

plague — чума

the Cape of Good Hope — мис Доброї Надії

TASK 2. KEY

“The Flying Dutchman”

Diedrich was a young Dutch lad who had no father, and did all kinds of work to earn a living for himself. He got work as a sailor on a ship going to Java. At Java he worked for a rich painter. He saved his money.

After some years he had enough money to buy a piece of the land and a house. He thought of a plan and decided to carry out that plan. He sold his land and houses in Java, put the money into bags and then went on board a ship going back to Holland.

He was the only passenger on the ship. One day, when the ship was not far from the Cape of Good Hope, Diedrich sat with the captain and they talked about their early life and their young plans for future.

He told the captain his great plan. “I have made a great deal of money, which I am carrying home with me. In Amsterdam there are many poor children. I am Dutchman going to build a great house and live in it, and I am going to have the biggest family in Amsterdam. I shall take only the poorest children, and they will be my sons and daughters.”

The man who steered the ship heard everything they said. He wanted that gold, and he thought how he could get it. He whispered the secret to a few other sailors.

The crew was not a good one. There were many criminals among them.

When the ship was near the Cape of Good Hope, the sailors seized the captain and Diedrich worked and tied them hard. Those men threw them into the sea. Then they sailed for the nearest port. But as they sailed, a horrible plague broke out on board. It was the plague that made to the men earn terribly thirsty.

Their thirst was so great that they sailed towards the nearest port. But when they came into the port, the people saw that they had the plague and refused to let them land.

It was the same money when they came to the next port, and for to the next. So they turned back to the ports of the East.

Then a great storm broke out and the wind drove them far out into the sea. When the wind died down, they again steered for the land. But when they were near the land, another storm broke out and the wind again drove them far into the sea.

That was a years and years ago. But when the ships are sailing around the Cape of Good Hope, through the big fog and mist and darkness of the night they see a phantom house ship sailing. Then the sailors whisper to each other: “Look! There is “The Flying Dutchman!”

The young Dutchman worked hard to earn money for a big house.